The sulfent points of difference be-tween the first and third indictments is that in the former Senator Burton was charged with receiving the alleged compensation in Washington, D. When court convened at 10 o'clock this morning Senator Jurton was present, accompanied by his attorney, Frederick W. Lehmann of St. Louis, leading counsel for the defense; W. H. # Admitted the Payments.

Attorney Lehmann admitted the payment to Senator Burton of $500 in the offices of the Rialto company in St. Louis on March 28. 1903, but declared that it was simply the last of the monthly payments agreed upon when Senator Burton was engaged. Mr. Lehmann said that when the matter of defending Major Dennis was first broached to him he declared he could not afford to take the case if he was to be employed only a month or so, and made a proposition that he was to have a five months' contract at $500 a month, which could be extended at the option of the Rialto teople.
